

RESEARCH COLLABORATORS

MISSION-ORIENTED COLLABORATION.

The Northern Hardwoods Research Institute has been a multi-stakeholder network since its' inception. We pride ourselves on being a knowledge and collaborative hub where business, government, academia and nongovernmental organizations come together to find solutions to northern hardwood and mixed forest management issues.

We work with various collaborators to identify important issues happening in the forest and then convert them into applied research projects. Our research is built around finding solutions for forestry stakeholders. Our mission-oriented research model has led us to work with many world class organizations!
